Abbar Kanchanjanga has been inspired by Satyajit Ray's 1962 film, Kanchenjunga. Set in the picturesque, 'golden glow' landscape of the Kanchenjunga, the film lucidly shows the get together of family members at their ancestral home. In this melting pot; brothers, ex-lovers, masters, sisters-in-law, and cousins come together and lay bare a whole gamut of emotions. Legal, financial and health issues complicate their interpersonal relations further. The underground cracks in a seemingly close-knit family starts to appear in no time. Can a bungalow boasting a breathtakingly glorious view of the Kanchenjunga bring in miracles and magically transform their lives?

Taking inspiration from the Museum of Broken Relationships in Zagreb, Croatia; he builds a museum of Relationships housing gut wrenching stories from the partition, everyday stories of love and heart-breaking stories of murder. Whether he sells off his share at the bidding of his uncle or holds fast to his dream forms the turning point of the story.

Aparajito - The Undefeated is a revisiting of the iconic movie 'Pathar Panchali' by Satyajit Ray as it recounts the hardships and struggles faced by a young filmmaker Aparajito Ray. The smart visuals and nuances of a bygone era complete with antique radios, vintage cars and the black and white imagery make for compelling viewing. It shows the making of Pathar Panchali - recreating the famous train scene, the reflection of the dog following the siblings, the village sweets-seller and the rain scene. The taut execution transports you to the actual shooting of the legendary film. The film captures people behind Ray's success, especially his astutely creative wife. The wonderful cinematography makes the Satyajit Ray come back to life in this tribute to the legendary director.
